

Particle flows and geodesics in a random metric space

Daniel Ahlberg¹

¹ IMPA

In first-passage percolation edges of the Z^2 lattice are assigned independent weights from some common distribution. The resulting weighted graph induces a random metric on Z^2 . We shall review some basic relationships between particle flows and geodesics in this metric space, and describe some recent advancements.